Robinson best for Assembly from the 37th House district

SEPTEMBER 10, 2009

We rarely have the kind of clear political choice we have in the 37th district representative race between Rob Robinson and Ruth Briggs King.

Briggs King's background is in human resources and instructional leadership, which well qualifies her for her current position as vice president of the Sussex County Association of Realtors and one of their registered lobbyists.

Robinson is an attorney, student of philosophy, public defender, chairman of the Georgetown Planning and Zoning Commission and member of the Delaware Preservation Fund. As planning chairman his commission broke new ground in Sussex County in drafting a fairer ordinance including "design guidelines." He supports "managed growth" for long-term prosperity, befitting a family that has farmed Sussex County for two centuries.

Robinson is independent of any special interest.

Briggs King's job is the paid lobbyist for the special interests.

As the paid lobbyist voice of the developers, Briggs King cannot possibly speak for the rest of us. By contrast, Robinson has a demonstrated record on the perennial issue in Sussex: managing fair land use for long-term prosperity for everyone – not just the special interests.

To say Robinson has no special interest ties is silly. He's a Democrat and would give that party the super majority they need to tax at will. And they have done such a wonderful job of state finances over the past decade, right? How much worse would we have been if they had absolutely no checks on their tax and spend philosophy?
